An employee is facing cancer. Now what do you do?

- Understand Your Role: What's expected from you as a manager when an employee gets cancer.
- Know the Law: Important facts on privacy, disability, medical leave and insurance.
- Learn About Possible Accommodations: Medical advice for workplace adjustments.
- Support the Diagnosed Employee: Suggestions on responding, communicating and building relationships and trust.
- Support the Caring Employee: Guidance on managing the employee caring for someone with cancer.
- Support Co-Workers: Suggestions for managing the impact of a cancer diagnosis on other employees.
- Make a Workplace Transition Plan: Step-by-step guide to making a plan with the employee facing cancer.
- Understand Side Effects: Strategies for helping the employee manage "hidden" pain and fatigue at work.
- Returns to Work: Recommendations for what to do when an employee is seeking to reach back to work.

Quick Tips

1. Establish the health care provider as a member of your team and get advice.
2. Share the "The Employer" booklet with the person affected by cancer.
3. Learn about the resources and policies your company has in place.
4. Make sure to don't put off and disability management group if available.
