The Alliance Provider Newsletter

Membership Numbers

The Alliance currently covers more than 105,000 individuals from 275 employers in the Midwest.

Reference-Based Contracting by The Alliance

Employers of The Alliance expect the ability to forecast health care costs so they can make educated decisions about health care purchases. Medicare is the largest payer of medical services in the United States. Their pricing and methodologies are publicly available, and because nearly every provider already uses Medicare methodologies, our employer-members expect the same application be used as an index to conduct commercial business.

We use Reference-Based Contracting in over 80% of our contracts because using Medicare rates and methodologies as a baseline allows employers to efficiently compare pricing across all providers and services and promotes good consumerism. Employers and employees/dependents know they have a choice in where health care services are purchased, so it's imperative they're spending their health care dollars wisely to ensure sustainable, cost-effective options that lead to good health.

Review Your Provider Directory Listing

The Alliance enrollees utilize our Find a Doctor provider directory to determine which providers are included in their network. To ensure accuracy of your organization's listing, please review how your organization is published on The Alliance Find a Doc directory.

If corrections are necessary, please notify us using the "Tell us if something needs to change" link found on your profile page. Alternatively, you can email us at providerservices@the-alliance.org.

To ensure the accuracy of claims processing, keep us informed of changes to your organization and practitioners that occur such as: business name or Tax ID, location or phone number changes, provider additions or terminations. Relevant forms are available on our website or you may email us at providerservices@the-alliance.org.

The Alliance Logo and Branding

You may have noticed an update to The Alliance logo and brand colors. We are still focused on moving health care forward for employers using our four core drivers of high-value health care: transparency, payment reform, benefit plan design, and provider network design. We simply wanted to create a clear and direct message in the market that resonates with more employers interested in Self-Funding Smart.

RAND Study Released

Recently, RAND Corporation and the Employers' Forum of Indiana released the National Hospital Price Transparency Study (RAND 3.0), which aims to help employers understand the costs they're paying for hospital services and the quality of those services. Many Wisconsin employers came together to volunteer their claims data for the study. The Alliance CEO, Cheryl DeMars, highlighted that significance by saying: "Employers — and the public — need to know the prices they are paying and the relative difference between hospitals and regions so they can make informed decisions.” Employers can use this data to help their purchasers contract with hospitals that offer the best value.

Holly Dooley Joins the Contracting Team at The Alliance

Holly Dooley recently joined The Alliance as Network Development Manager. She is a graduate of UW-Eau Claire and continues to reside in that area with her family. Holly brings 25 years of experience in the insurance industry to The Alliance. Her career has included working for a major insurer and a provider health system; both companies provided her the opportunity to focus on provider contracting and marketing. Holly's most recent position was with her family-owned benefits brokerage firm in western Wisconsin. She worked directly with employers throughout the Midwest to develop benefit packages and provide education to their employees on health care.
